Then Representative Shepard remarked:

"I do not think that this assembly has got to listen to every exclanation that any man may wish to make. It is not a question of personal privilege at all. As far as I can see, if Mr. Jackson has any troubles, he can either tell them to the committee or the noise. Charges have been made by Representative Law, and I do not care about sitting here and hearing all the details that is the duty of the committee, and I agree with Mr. Smoot."

"The chair desires to state," interjected President Nebester, "that this is in line with the privilege granted to other members, and it is entirely with.
